Re: Notice of Possible Security Breach

Dear Nh Dept Of Justice,

We would like to inform you of a situation involving a backup computer tape that was found to be missing from its secure storage area on August 5, 2008. The tape contained the names and address information, and in some instances, social security numbers, driver's license or other government identification numbers, of our customers. The tape did not contain any financial information such as credit card numbers, debit card numbers, account numbers, security codes, access codes or passwords.

We immediately reported the incident to law enforcement authorities. Notice to our customers was delayed until law enforcement told us that we could do so without harming their investigation. At this time, we have not been given any indication that the information on the tape has been misused. We utilized one of the best computer software products available and our vendor has assured us that it is very unlikely that the data could be accessed by an unauthorized person. We take data security very seriously and are reviewing our practices in this area.

You have the right, if you wish, to place a fraud alert on your credit file. A fraud alert tells creditors to contact you before they open any new accounts or change your existing accounts. To do so, call any one of the three major credit bureaus. As soon as one credit bureau confirms your fraud alert, the others are notified to place fraud alerts. All three credit reports will be sent to you, free of charge, for your review.
